Leader To Break Thruway Ground

Stevens To Speak At Program

BRIEF talks will be given by Gov. George M. Leader and Highways Secretary Lewis M. Stevens at ground-breaking exercises for the Stroudsburg Thruway tomorrow afternoon.

The Governor will break ground for the new highway project at the 1 p.m. ceremony just off Prospect St., East Stroudsburg, and then join the lead cars in the veterans' Memorial Day parade to Stroudsburg Cemetery for the traditional program.

Clifford L. Cramer, county chapter chairman for the Keystone Assn., will preside at the ground-breaking. The program will start with the playing of "America" by the East Stroudsburg High School Band and the invocation by Rabbi Joshua Soden, of Temple Israel.

Burgess Edward A. Doran of Stroudsburg will present James Morrissey, contractor for the first phase construction of the Thruway, who will merely acknowledge the introduction.

Highways Secretary Stevens will then speak briefly.

Col. Clifford A. Poutre, commander of Tobyhanna Signal Depot, will be among the honored guests on the platform.

Flory Introduction

This will be followed by Cramer's introduction of Burgess Jesse R. S. Flory, of East Stroudsburg, who will introduce Gov. Leader. The Governor will deliver a short talk before breaking ground on the $5,164,308 first-phase Thruway project.

The program will close with playing of the National Anthem and the benediction.

Cramer emphasized that the entire program will take less than a half hour in order that the Memorial Day parade can move off on schedule at 2 p.m.

He invited the public, as well as all government officials, civic organizations and service clubs, to attend the ceremonies.

Monroe County Joint Memorial Committee is in charge of arrangements for the annual parade. Units will form at Prospect Cemetery at 1:30, then move out a half hour later.

The line of march will be down Prospect St. to Analomink St., Crystal St., Washington St. and to the inter-borough bridge, where tribute will be paid to Navy dead.

The parade will then cross into Stroudsburg and march to Main and Seventh Sts., where it will pause briefly for further services, and proceed to Stroudsburg Cemetery for the annual memorial program.

Soldiers Set For Services

WASHINGTON (AP)—The honored Unknowns of World War II and Korea have returned at last to the sun-warmed soil of their homeland.

Side by side, now, they lie in state beneath the towering Capitol dome, accepting the reverent accolade of their countrymen.

Military Rites

With formal military rites, flag-shrouded caskets of the nameless warriors were carried ashore from the destroyer Blandy yesterday. They have come back home, for the first time since they sacrificed lives and names for the freedom of fellow men.

Spot Listed For Assembly Of Parade

ALL UNITS for Friday's Memorial Day parade are asked to assemble at Prospect Cemetery on Prospect St. in East Stroudsburg.

Earl R. Palmer, coordinator for Monroe County Joint Memorial Committee and veterans' organizations, issued this reminder last night.

The parade will move out from Prospect St. following breaking of ground for the new Stroudsburg Thruway.

IN THE RAIN: A FLAG FOR MEMORY—On Memorial Day, small American flags will wave proudly from the graves of veterans in all Monroe County cemeteries. A man who has done much to keep this duty to the memory of veterans alive is George L. Angle, kneeling here at grave of an old school friend, Harry Schoonover in Stroudsburg cemetery. Angle and Schoonover were in the Spanish-American War. With Angle in photograph are George Straka and Al Trimmer, commanders of VFW and Legion posts in this area. (Staff Photo by Randolph)

De Gaulle Leaves Paris After Talks

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle came to Paris last night to take power if President Coty and the highest party leaders can make him acceptable to Parliament.

After talking with parliamentary leaders about his chances of becoming premier, he drove back to his country home early yesterday.

There was no official announcement immediately of the results of the talks.

The outcry in Paris streets was loudly anti-De Gaulle but his many foes in Parliament were under pressure to accept him as the only choice in France's gravest postwar crisis.

President Coty put the dour, towering fighting French hero of World War II into conference with the leaders of the National Assembly and Senate.

They were told to see if they could overcome the normally great parliamentary opposition to De Gaulle and rightist ideas of authoritarian government.

De Gaulle avoided coming to the heart of Paris where crowds numbering up to 50,000—by police estimate—demonstrated against him.

His rendezvous with the parliament leaders was in a secret place.

Coty's decision throwing the government crisis back into Parliament came at the end of a hectic day of political bickering and street demonstrations against De Gaulle.

De Gaulle sped here from his home village in response to a summons from President Coty.

Senate Passes Benefits Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House yesterday a bill authorizing federal advances to the states to finance a temporary extension of unemployment benefits.

The vote was 80-0 on passage, after various counter proposals were turned down.

History Important To Memorial Day Plans

By Leonard Randolph

TO SOME MEN George Angle may seem old.

But to the men who know and work with him, George Angle is a "hard man to keep up with."

At 80 this Beakleville native has many things to look back upon. It is a tribute to his youth that none of them ever over-shadow the things he has to look forward to.

George Angle is a veteran of the Spanish-American War. As wars go, it is perhaps less written about and less understood than most. This is strange, because it was a war of great complexity.

Like all other wars it took its toll of human life. And it left its imprint on the lives of all those who did not die.

The image of the war is still strong in George's mind: "But not because I did anything important."

George Angle was born April 27, 1878 in Beakleville near East Stroudsburg. A niece, Myrtle Angle, Stroud Township tax collector, now lives on the family homestead.

He attended local schools. On May 3, 1900 at Wilkes-Barre, he enlisted in the United States Marine Corps. He received his training at Philadelphia, Norfolk, Washington, D. C.

In the nation's capitol he joined the Fifth Battalion of the USMC. His battalion left San Francisco on July 29, 1900 en route to China.

His unit took an active part in the Boxer Rebellion; was later transferred to the Philippines. The Marines stayed there until June 4, 1901 when Military Governor William Howard Taft turned the Philippines over to civil authorities.

Then the battalion went back to the China coast. As was the custom in those days in strife-torn China, there were repeated "uprisings" in the provinces and along the coast. The Marines—general trouble-shooters as guardians of the coast—were called on many times to calm the troubled waters.

From China the unit returned to the Philippines again; stayed there three years and two months. Then the unit, with others, brought a Navy transport back to the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

George was stationed first at Philadelphia Navy Yard and then at the Naval Magazine at Fort Mifflin, Pa.

One of the high spots of his Marine career was the April, 1904 trip to the St. Louis Exposition. The Marine battalion was one of the prime features of the international show.

Contract Let For Early Construction

HARRISBURG (AP)—A contract for construction of the first of two sections of the Stroudsburg Thruway, eastern terminus of the Keystone Shortway, was awarded yesterday by the State Highway Department.

The contract went to James D. Morrissey Inc., of Philadelphia, on a low bid of $5,164,308.

The section extends from the Delaware Water Gap westerly for 32.1 miles.

Access to the four-lane divided highway will be fully controlled.

The project will relocate U.S. Route 611 in the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg area.

Ike Opposed To Defense Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said yesterday certain provisions of the defense reorganization bill approved by the House Armed Services Committee would lead to "legalized insubordination" in the armed forces.

In a statement after a conference with Secretary of Defense McElroy, the President singled out three features of the bill for criticism. He said they directly conflict with the reorganization program he recommended, and added:

"These provisions continue to emphasize disunity and separatism within the Defense Department. They continue to imply congressional approval of wasteful duplications, administrative delays and interservice rivalries."

Eisenhower said the provisions would add up, in specific cases, to 1, a legalized bottleneck, 2, a case of "everyone's out of step but me," and 3, legalized insubordination.

Reorganization

When the committee approved a reorganization bill recently, Eisenhower objected to a provision continuing to give Congress final decision, without possibility of a presidential veto, in controversial changes in functions of any service.

Eisenhower also found fault with language specifying that the secretary of defense's authority over the services shall be exercised through the secretaries of the services.

In his analysis, the President also objected to a provision saying that no feature of the reorganization program shall be construed to prevent a service secretary or a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from presenting to Congress, on their own initiative after first informing the secretary of defense, any recommendations relating to the Defense Department they might deem proper.

Council Members

Other council members who testified were Hanford L. Cleveland, council president and Monroe County representative in the General Assembly; Gerald A. Snyder, county Republican chairman; John T. Lambert, Jr., principal of East Stroudsburg elementary schools; Henry F. Peters, Sr., and Miss Ellen Hoffman.

At the request of Turzot, witnesses were not permitted to remain in the hearing room while other members of the council testified. They went outside.

Dr. Anthony J. Harlach, one of the witnesses who was ejected from the hearing room, went to his car to rest. Because it was rainy and damp, he started the engine and turned on the heater.

More than two hours later, when the hearing adjourned without him being called, friends went to the car and found him in a dazed condition. Believed to be suffering from the effects of carbon monoxide poisoning, he was taken to General Hospital by friends for administration of oxygen. His condition was satisfactory late last night.

The request was granted after a 45-minute delay during which the witnesses refused to leave the room. No reason was given for their ejection.

The criminal information filed against the clergyman charges that he said that Bonser "had received money to testify to a fabricated story in a case pending in New York City; said accusations were unfounded therefore injured the good reputation of your affiant Herbert G. Bonser."

Charge

The charge resulted from conflicting testimony in a New York City case involving the estate of Elias Cohen of New York. His estate is being sued by Marie Bellotti Cohen, who described herself as the common law wife of the decedent.

Rev. Wunder's participation in the case originates from a statement made by Bonser in the clergyman's presence in which he repudiated the story of the wedding. Rev. Wunder has contended that the statement was given without coercion or other pressure on the pastor's part.

Good Morning!

The time to start worrying, if you must, is when friends stop telling you that you look older.

Wunder Case Continued One Week

By Don Allen

MOUNTAINHOME—A hearing before Peace Justice Clifford L. Bush of Barrett Township on charges of "blackmail by injury to reputation against Rev. William F. Wunder, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, was continued until next week after testimony was begun last night.

Rev. Wunder pleaded innocent to the charge brought against him by Herbert G. Bonser, former East Stroudsburg justice of the peace.

Attorneys for both parties in the case will confer on a date to be set by the Bureau of Public Roads and in all of its offices and it was determined, based on these studies, that the shortest and best route across the State to service inter-regional and local traffic needs...

In his letter to Flood, Talamy said:

"In regards to your inquiry pertaining to the Keystone Shortway, the State of Pennsylvania studied the engineering and economic aspects of that route and other possible east-west routes across Pennsylvania in great detail.

"These studies were reviewed by the Bureau of Public Roads and in all of its offices and it was determined, based on these studies, that the shortest and best route across the State to service inter-regional and local traffic needs was via the so-called Keystone Shortway.

"We are advised by the Department of Highways that by the time of the completion of this route, such traffic as might be diverted from the Pennsylvania Turnpike would not jeopardize its financing.

(Editors Note: Philadelphia interests have claimed that the Shortway will endanger paying-off of Turnpike bonds. They also claim that the east-west highway between Stroudsburg and Sharon will funnel traffic to New York rather than to Philadelphia.)

"The Bureau concurred that the Shortway would not affect Turnpike financing in view of the new interstate highway construction, leading from the west, the north, the south and the east, which will be connected to the Turnpike, bringing new volume of traffic to that highway. (This is a reference, in part, to the Penn-Can highway which, with the Shortway, would connect with the North-east Extension of the Turnpike.)

"Therefore, because of the inter-regional and local importance of the Keystone Shortway, it was approved by the Bureau. Detailed location from Du-buols to the Ohio State line have been approved. Detailed locations have also been approved from the vicinity of Lewisburg to Stroudsburg onto the New Jersey State line.

"The State is now studying detailed locations for the Shortway in the central part of the State.

"When these studies are finished and found satisfactory by the Bureau, they will be approved for finalizing the location across the entire State.

Construction

"Construction work may proceed on the Keystone Shortway portion of the Interstate System as desired by the State.

"As construction schedules are advanced, they will be considered as to whether or not they will be jeopardizing the financing of the Turnpike system.

"It is not expected, however, that the construction schedule to be advanced by the State will do so."

Earlier yesterday Philadelphia interests talked of a "meeting" to discuss the Shortway. The meeting is reportedly scheduled for "early in June."

When this announcement was made public, Clifford L. Cramer, Monroe County chairman of the Keystone Shortway Assn., said:

"We take strong exception to the ruling handed down by the Federal Government today.

"The Shortway has been unanimously approved by both the Pennsylvania House and the Senate which, of course, includes the Philadelphia delegation.

"The project was further approved by the State Highway Department."

Confusion Marks Recent Action In Washington

PHILADELPHIA'S war with the rest of Pennsylvania continued unabated yesterday.

But there was confusion on several fronts along the battle lines.

Philadelphia newspapers broke out headlines saying that the "U.S. Will Hear City's Protest On Shortway." A press service story also claimed that the Federal Government would not approve construction of the Keystone Shortway until "further investigation."

The wire service story quoted Paul Royster, assistant highway administrator in Washington. It said that he had made the statement in a discussion with delegates from the Greater Philadelphia Movement.

At the same time, Federal Bureau of Public Roads director Bertram D. Talamy, in a letter to Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D) Luzerne County, said that studies of the Shortway route proposed by Pennsylvania showed that it was the "shortest and best route across the State to service inter-regional and local traffic needs..."

Navy Still Searching For Vanguard

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Informed sources said yesterday the Navy may never learn what happened to its latest Vanguard satellite.

The general feeling was that the 21½-pound sphere plummeted back to earth and disintegrated, but there was a remote possibility that it sailed into an erratic orbit somewhere in space.

It was reported that scientists sifting through a maze of telemetry data discovered that an electrical malfunction at the last split second probably caused the 30-pound, third-stage vehicle to stray off its prescribed course.

Info Space

The rocket blasted into space Tuesday night on what appeared to be a perfect launching. Vanguard crewmen began a premature victory celebration when it was announced minutes later that all three stages functioned smoothly.

All that was needed was official confirmation that the gold-plated 20-inch satellite was in orbit but the word never came.

The rocket beeped a strong signal to down-range tracking stations in the Bahamas and British West Indies, but contact was lost shortly thereafter.

Five hours of uncertainty passed before Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the project, announced that the Navy's first Vanguard satellite, launching vehicle failed to push its payload into the planned orbit.

That left three American moons and Russia's 1½-ton Sputnik III as the only satellites in orbit.

Presbyterians Unite In One Church

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Nature provided a baptism of rain yesterday at the founding of a new Presbyterian Church.

Then, as its first act of worship, the United Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. celebrated the Lord's Supper.

The new denomination was formed by the merger of two long-separated branches of Presbyterianism.

A heavy downpour soaked the 1,200 robed church representatives as they converged in twin processions at a street intersection.

Shake Hands

They stood there a few minutes in the rain, their leaders shaking hands and pledging their new alliance of faith.

Then, spontaneously, they broke into the spirit-rousing doxology, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Water trickled down their faces.

The historic merger joins the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. and the United Presbyterian Church, which broke apart in a time-obscured dispute more than two centuries ago in Scotland.

Now united, they constitute a denomination of three million members and nearly 10,000 congregations across the nation.

Farmers Home Administration Supervisor Appointed For Southeastern Pennsylvania

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)
HARRISBURG—A. Rudolph York, of Lancaster, has been appointed area supervisor to the Farmers Home Administration of the U.S. Department of Agriculture for southeastern Pennsylvania including Monroe County. State FHA Director George M. Hummer disclosed yesterday. The new area supervisor replaces John A. Noel, of Munster, who retired. Hummer said, York moves to his new position from FHA farm management supervisor, working out of the Lancaster office where his headquarters will continue to be located. In his new job, York will supervise seven FHA county offices in the southeastern Pennsylvania area covering the counties of Adams, Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Franklin, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Mifflin, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton, Perry, Philadelphia, Pike, Schuylkill and York. (FHA is a federal agency which makes supervised loans to eligible farmers who cannot get credit from other sources, with eligibility of applicants determined by a county committee of three local residents, two of whom must be farmers.)

York, who has been with FHA and predecessor agencies for 19 years, has served Chester, Lebanon and Lancaster counties out of the Lancaster office for the last three years.

In addition to handling credit problems for the area and serving as an advisor in farm management practices, he will also assist in the handling of appraisals of applicants' farms, Hummer said.

Memorial Day

Memorial Day means many things to many people—a day off work, almost the end of school, beginning of the vacation season, etc.—but to all of us it should mean a day to pay reverence to our war dead.

Every citizen should feel privileged to do honor to those veterans who fought and sometimes gave their lives to preserve our cherished American freedoms.

Each of us—veteran and non-veteran alike—should spend part of the holiday in paying tribute to those who have served their country in time of national emergency.

Monroe County Joint Memorial Committee has placed an American flag at the grave of each veteran in the area. The rest of us would do well to visit some cemetery there to lay a garland of flowers, a wreath or a potted plant on the grave of a loved one.

The real significance of Memorial Day has faded somewhat since the advent of the automobile. While not meaning to be disrespectful or irreverent toward the sacrifices of war veterans, we are apt to find ourselves away someplace or too busy to honor the war dead on the day set aside for them.

Monroe Countians can look forward to an extra special observance of the holiday tomorrow.

Besides the traditional exercises at the cemetery after the parade in the boroughs, the public is invited to attend the ground-breaking ceremonies to mark the start of construction of the $10,000,000 Stroudsburg Thruway project.

Gov. George M. Leader, Highways Secretary Lewis M. Stevens and other dignitaries will participate in the program. They will then join local citizens in the parade from East Stroudsburg to Stroudsburg.

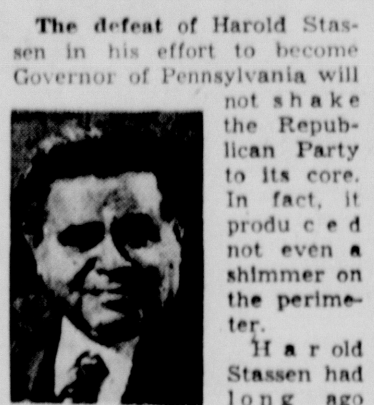

Close cooperation between the veterans' memorial committee and the ground-breaking committee has brought about a schedule convenient to the public. The events are so arranged that citizens can visit cemeteries in the morning, witness the ground-breaking at 1 p.m. and then take in the annual parade and community Memorial Day exercises. Thus, wide participation in all the activities of the day is expected, weather permitting.

A Day Which Speaks For Itself

George Sokolsky Says...

Stassen And Pretzels

The defeat of Harold Stassen in his effort to become Governor of Pennsylvania will not shake the Republican Party to its core. In fact, it produces a shimmer on the perimeter.

Harold Stassen had long ago outlived his usefulness as a political leader, not because he lacks ability but because the march of time has passed him by.

Few men ever realize when their day to retire from political activity has come and they invite cruel defeat rather than sit by in the bleachers. And cruel defeat usually overtakes them.

Harold Stassen, at a very early age, showed enormous political promise, having become Governor of Minnesota at 31. He brought into the Republican Party a younger generation which was of great value, because after 1932, it looked for a while as though when a Republican died, there would be no one to replace him.

Then Stassen became Wendell Willkie's floor manager at the 1940 Convention, which was a political error, because Willkie added nothing to Stassen's stature and brought upon him the enmity of both the Taft and Dewey forces who were then already emerging to political leadership.

University Position Subsequently Harold Stassen wandered hither and thither, seeking office which would give him a sounding board and keep him before the public.

With the aid of the Pew of Philadelphia, he became president of the University of Pennsylvania, but like Eisenhower at Columbia University, he found academic administration a different kind of chore than it was in those days when Nicholas Murray Butler could make speeches universally and a university build itself into greatness as a result thereof.

Today, running one of those schools is a man-sized administrative job and if not attended to, the university sinks into bricks and mortar which are, after all, little more than potential rubble.

Stassen's time to run for the Presidency was in 1932. That was also the year when Robert A. Taft and Thomas E. Dewey should have run against each other for the nomination, thus settling an intra-party feud by a vote on it. But the Republican businessmen decided that they required a more glamorous figure and they made the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower possible. Harold Stassen, having nowhere to go, joined the Eisenhower Administration in various capacities. The President, it is said, took a great liking to him. But Stassen's interest had taken a turn to international relations which, unfortunately for him, is the province of John Foster Dulles. The attempt to operate two State Departments led to all the complexities of a bigamous marriage and in the end, Stassen had to go, as his friends tried to tell him all along.

This would not have been a political disaster, had Harold Stassen not developed a unquenchable envy of Richard Nixon, the Vice President, who is constitutionally next in succession to a President who has cardiac difficulties, and who is likely to be nominated in 1960 as a reward for good conduct, despite the President's probable preference for General Gruenther. So far as intra-party cleavage is concerned, the two major factions in the Republican Party are now for Nixon.

So Stassen attempted to have Nixon dumped in 1956. Such a dumping effort is usually done in secret on a dark night in a smoke-filled room by experienced politicians who do not need to use words to express purposes. However, Stassen did it all in the open, like an honest but inexperienced man. He created the impression that he was a fall-guy for one of the most tricky politicians of recent years, Sherman Adams, who, not satisfied with vicariously governing a country, hopes for recognition for himself, a laudable ambition but generally unacceptable.

At any rate, instead of Nixon being dumped, Stassen was and he returned to Pennsylvania to run for Governor, hoping thereby to have a stepping-stone for 1960. He was, however, defeated by an eloquent and competent pretzel-maker, Arthur T. McGonigle, who took Stassen better than two to one and as a politician might say, that is that.

Had Stassen been nominated for Governor of Pennsylvania by the Republican Party, there can be no doubt but that he would have gone into the Republican Convention in 1960 to seek the Presidency. Now, he would be well-advised to, in Congressional parlance, yield. His day is done.

Memos of a Midnighter:

Stop-The-Presses. Aly Khan (Mr. Lothario) did the night spot circuit with seeds of United Nations officials—all males. Sallies In Our Alley: Hank Henry, the hilarious star of the Silver Slipper (in Vegas), never permits gabby drunks out front to "throw" him. Last night he got a lusty laugh when he hit several janky yokels with: "That's what I like about this place. Every table has its own floor show."

Broadway: The Street where everyone's going your way only when everything is.

Street Scene: The big lad is those stickers on the rear of cars that read: "Made in Texas by Texans." "Made in Oklahoma by Indians." "Made in Virginia by Virgins." "Made in Hollywood by Nearly Everybody." . . . But the one that is getting the loudest laugh is the sticker on a "lemon that limps along." It says: "Made in Detroit by Idiots."

Broadway Hash: Willie Mays sleeps in a bed with a 14-K gold leather headboard. (Now how he knows that?) . . . Duet at the Embers: Lola ("My Fair Lady") Fisher and A. Jim Riley Says:

Youngsters Forget About Safety

In recent months I've preached for safety among our younger folks. Apparently my words and thousands of others uttered in the four corners of our nation have been wasted.

I am one of those people who believe that the bicycle is one of the most dangerous vehicles ever invented.

On Tuesday of this week, I watched three bike riders, coming east on Stroudsburg's W. Main St., go right through the stop light at Ninth St. They just "ran" the light.

But, Lady Luck was smiling broadly on the thoughtless trio, as a car coming south on Ninth St. went through the green light, as should be, at an extremely slow speed.

Even then one of the youngsters was almost hit. It was at this point, and only at this point, that the kids even stopped to realize what could have happened. They stopped on the side of the street to spend some time shuddering and thinking as to just what might have happened to them.

I hope to see the day that riding a bicycle will be just as much a part of our education system as driver training is at the present time.

Virtually every child in the higher grades of the elementary school rides a bicycle. It is at this point that each of the youngsters should be taught to ride a bicycle correctly.

Riding a bicycle correctly is as important to a grade school youngster as is driving a car to his high school brother.

Our children must be taught that every traffic law pertaining to motor vehicles also pertains to the riding of bicycles.

One of these laws broken could result in a fatal accident.

Safety patrols in and around our schools do a great job. But, these patrols are limited, as they can't follow the individual student directly to his home.

It is up to the individual student to practice the rules of safety to the best of his ability.

It is also up to every parent and teacher to present these safety rules in their most simple form, so that every child may digest them and receive the utmost in understanding.

Safety is one of our most important items. We must honor each of the rules, regardless of whether walking or riding.

Mistakes often cost lives and carelessness is almost certain to cause damage.

Loans Spark Trouble

Washington—Senator Wayne

Morse is on the trail of financial dynamite in his investigation of the snarled relations between the U. S. and South America.

The militant Oregonian has received information that huge loans the Export-Import Bank has made and is considering there are at the bottom of some of this country's most serious difficulties in the Southern hemisphere.

Two loans particularly are under scrutiny by Morse:

$154,000,000 to Brazil in 1955-56, for the announced purpose of improving railroads, harbors and rivers. Former Treasury Secretary George Humphrey figures prominently in this transaction, in the data in Morse's hands.

$1.5 billion to be loaned to Argentina, reputedly in exchange for important concessions to U. S. oil companies. Vice President Nixon is being credited with discussing these negotiations during his recent Buenos Aires visit.

Source of Morse's potentially explosive information is another forceful congressional investigator—Rep. Wright Patman (D., Tex.), long-time champion of little business and chairman of the House Banking Subcommittee that has jurisdiction over the Export-Import Bank.

In that capacity, Patman has been digging into the bank's lending operations in South America. But he hasn't gotten very far. After obtaining some material, Patman ran into a stone wall of secrecy.

Samuel Waugh, head of the Bank, has flatly refused to open its files on these and other loans.

Included in the latter are large loans to Peru and Venezuela, where Nixon encountered the most hostile demonstrations. Patman's demand for these records is being supported by Rep. Brent Spence (D., Ky.), chairman of the full Banking Committee. But that has had no effect on Waugh.

He has told them that all details of these South American loans have been "classified as top secret."

This backstage clash has been reported to Morse. He proposes to thoroughly explore it and the material turned over to him by Patman, especially that involving former Treasury Secretary Humphrey. Reason for this is two items:

(1) At the time the Export-Import Bank granted the $154,000,000 loan to Brazil, Humphrey was chairman of the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Problems. Other members are Secretary Dulles, Commerce Secretary Weeks, and William McChester Martin, head of the Federal Reserve. The Council passes on all major loans to foreign countries.

(2) Reputedly a leading beneficiary of this big loan is Mineracoi Hanna do Brasil, a subsidiary of the M. A. Hanna Corporation, which Humphrey headed before becoming Treasury Secretary. The Hanna subsidiary has extensive holdings in Brazil, foremost among them rich iron ore deposits in Minas Gerais Province.

According to Patman, there is also a direct relation between the $2 billion additional lending authority Congress has voted the Export-Import Bank, and the proposed $1.5 billion loan to Argentina, which he claims Vice President Nixon discussed while there.

Note: A leading U. S. businessman in Venezuela has written Senator Morse a detailed analysis of the causes of hostility there. Foremost among them he cites the following:

"The official organs of cultural relations between our two countries have failed in a way which is typically American. We, as Americans, make our appeals in gestures of friendship not to the critical masses of poor Venezuelans but to the thin upper crust of Venezuelans who, at any rate, are already committed to us for their own economic reasons.

"The Centro Venezolano-Americano, the U. S. Information Agency's bi-national center in Caracas, after seventeen years of service to the country club set and the comfortable white collar workers of Caracas, only recently set up a branch in one of the poor sections of the city. When it was suggested that this branch could reach more people not by our traditional teaching of English but by the teaching of the ABCs in Spanish accompanied by some social work, the idea was indignantly turned down by local U. S. Information Agency officials as 'not meeting the program objectives of the Centro.'"

Mental Health Unit Receives Charter

MONROE COUNTY Mental Health Assn. received its official charter last night.

The organization immediately voted to petition Monroe County Community Chest for membership in the unified fund drive carried out each year.

With plans for an intensified and greatly-enlarged program of service for county residents, the Mental Health Assn. will request membership in the Chest as a full-fledged agency.

The association expects to make its request to the Chest in a few days.

Presentation
The charter was presented last night by Max Silverstein, executive director of Pennsylvania Mental Health, Philadelphia. In making the presentation, Silverstein praised the local organization for its education program during its first year.

Reports from standing committees, at request of Mrs. Arthur Henning, president, showed the following progress:

Mrs. James Cummings, new program chairman, reported that the association plans to present several Mental Health plays during the coming year. Miss Helen Stetter, speech correctionist with the Monroe County Public Schools office, has agreed to join the board and serve as director for the plays.

A letter is now being drafted for mailing to all organizations in the county. The letter will offer presentation of an education program—either a play, a speaker or a film—for one of the organization's meetings.

Mrs. Nora Meyung, membership chairman, reported that there are now 93 individual members and eight organization memberships in MCMHA.

Rev. Robert Galligan, chairman of the survey committee on mental health needs, suggested that all directors study the survey report during the Summer. At the first regular board meeting in September, Father Galligan said, directors should come prepared to select the major field for work in the coming year and offer suggestions on how best to accomplish the goals established.

Volunteer Services
Mrs. Harold Pond, volunteer services chairman, reported that plans for the carnival for patients at Allentown State Hospital are now nearing completion. It is scheduled for July.

Mrs. Pond noted that the local association is expected to provide volunteers to staff booths at the carnival.

Joseph Platt told the board that Allentown Hospital staff members have agreed to use a form letter prepared by the local association which is to be sent to the families of new and present Monroe County patients at the hospital.

The letter simply informs the family of the existence of the MCMHA and its aims and services. It will enclose a card which the family may return to MCMHA requesting further information.

Furniture On Lawn Popular

COMFORTABLE lawn furniture adds so much to the pleasure of leisure hours there's no reason not to enjoy the best.

The group illustrated includes without doubt, some of the most comfortable pieces available. Thanks to full-size patterns, you can build these for a fraction of what similar pieces cost if purchased ready-made.

There's no mystery to building. The curved back and curved seat are cut from flat pieces of lumber with a coping or keyhole saw.

All you do is cut each piece the exact size of the full-size pattern, then fasten each piece together in position shown. To further simplify construction, even screw and bolt holes are indicated.

Unpainted Chairs

While similar unpainted chairs sell up to $16.95 assembled, materials can be purchased from your local lumber dealer for about a third of the cost. If you buy material for more than one chair, each will cost less.

A 50 cent coping saw is about the only "special" tool required.

Send 50 cents in coin or money order (no stamps please) for Lawn Chair number 32; 50 cents for pattern number 39 Lawn Settee and pattern number 326 Terrace or Coffee Table to The Daily Record P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N.Y.

Send an additional 35 cents for 64 page catalog illustrating over 300 other build it yourself projects. Send 10 cents extra for first-class mail and 10 cents if payment is made by check.

Low-Cost Machines

LOW-COST home air conditioning systems that retail in most areas at "less than $700 installed" are now available.

Insulation May Answer Problems

IF YOU want complete air conditioning in your home but feel you can't afford a central cooling system now, you might consider following the lead of William H. Hogan, of Savannah, Ga.

Hogan was using a three-quarter-ton window air conditioner to cool the living room and part of the dining room in his 1,700-square-foot brick veneer bungalow, but wanted to air condition the entire house to make the hot Georgia summers more comfortable for his family.

His budget wouldn't permit an investment in a central system, but he had heard that a small house of about 1,000 square feet could be comfortably cooled with a room air conditioner if it had thick insulation in walls and ceiling.

Why, he wondered, wouldn't two three-quarter units do the cooling job in his 1,700-square-foot house if he added more insulation?

Hogan checked with a local mineral wool contractor, who agreed it would work. Using pneumatic equipment, the contractor blew a four-inch thickness of mineral wool on top of the two-inch thickness already in the attic, giving the Hogan house six full inches of overhead insulation.

The contractor also filled the walls with mineral wool, using the blow-in method, and Hogan made sure all cracks around doors, windows and foundation were securely caulked.

Toward the end of the summer, the contractor received a letter from Hogan in which he wrote:

"The results have been phenomenal. After your job was completed, I had an additional three-quarter-ton unit installed which gives me a total of one-and-one-half tons capacity for my entire 1,700-square-foot house.

"Since the hot weather I have had no difficulty at all holding the inside temperature of my home down to 75 degrees even on the hottest days.

"When the weather is not extremely hot, I find that only one of the three-quarter ton units will keep the entire house comfortably cool.

"I consider your job an excellent investment as it has made possible complete air conditioning of my home at a very nominal cost. I also anticipate much more uniform heating and substantial savings in fuel during the winters."

Insulation In Bag

MINERAL WOOL insulation in "pouring wool" form can be used by home-owners who want to insulate an attic floor themselves.

Pouring wool comes in paper bags that are light and easy to handle. The mineral wool is simply poured out of the bags into spaces between the attic floor joists and smoothed to an even depth of at least four inches.

Space Used To Good Advantage

THERE'S not a foot of space in this modern design that is not utilized to best advantage to give you the most house for your money.

The handsome exterior offers low cost distinction with its nearly flat roof and sweeping honest lines. As to the interior, it's hard to believe that so many of the most desired features can be planned into a one-story design, but see for yourself that not a luxury idea is left out.

Wide, bright window areas are featured in every room with a picture view window for the living room. A floor-to-ceiling fieldstone wall, encasing fireplace and woodbox, further distinguishes the living area.

Although opposite the entranceway, the dining area is effectively screened by a china cupboard.

Separated from the living-dining area only by a snack bar, the breakfast room remains active in family conversations, even though carrying out her meal preparation chores. Louvered folding doors permit privacy in the area, however, when desired.

The kitchen — a masterpiece of efficiency — has its own entrance from the backyard. The terrace with doors leading to both study and kitchen doubles as a summertime outdoor dining room and adds a note of graciousness to suburban living.

The bedrooms and multi-purpose room are positioned in a wing of their own. At the back is the master bedroom with two generous sized closets and corner windows for superior ventilation.

In the bath, there is a good deep linen closet to supplement the main closet in the hallway. An alternate basement plan is available.

If your family believes a house was meant to be lived in, this is a sure bet.

Requirements
This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 981 square feet, 9,316 cubic feet without basement and 16,770 cubic feet with a basement. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for design number H-260 may be purchased for $9.75. For three additional sets add $25. You may also purchase a plan book showing 56 additional designs for 60 cents postpaid. Address all questions and orders to Homograp Home Plan Department of The Daily Record, Warren, Mich."

Central Air Conditioner May Soon Become Standard Equipment In Average Homes

THE BRIGHTEST promise on the horizon of the American home owner today is the fact that central air conditioning soon will be standard equipment in most average homes — no longer a luxury but a necessity almost as important as the family car.

This isn't idle talk, nor is it propaganda issued by manufacturers of air-conditioning equipment. It is, instead, the conviction of many leading government officials, doctors, psychologists, home economists, child care experts, dietitians, bankers, top men in the home-building field, and everyone who lives in an air-conditioned house now.

What is causing central air conditioning to climb so suddenly from its old status as a luxury to an important need?

Here are the three main factors:

1. The health and general welfare of the average family is benefited greatly by air conditioning.

2. Newly developed systems combined with proper mineral wool insulation can reduce the size of equipment — and therefore the cost — by as much as half.

3. Savings on cleaning and medical bills generally offset operating costs of air conditioning in the average home.

These facts were obtained through concentrated research in recent years aimed at discovering how air conditioning could be manufactured, installed, and operated at costs low enough for the average home owner — research projects such as the Air Conditioned Village, in Austin, Tex., where an entire community was constructed to test air conditioning systems and insulation in different types of homes under actual living conditions.

Results of these research projects — the added comfort, convenience, economy, health, and general welfare brought about by air conditioning — were so positive that leaders in all fields of the home-building industry began to take air conditioning more seriously than ever.

An example is the Round Table Discussion on Air Conditioning sponsored by House & Home, a building publication. More than 60 top builders, government officials, bankers, and leaders in industry who participated in the discussion came to this conclusion:

Within a few years, the average family will refuse to buy a house without air conditioning as quickly as they would refuse one without a bathroom today.

Norman Mason, commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, was so impressed by the research on air conditioning that he inaugurated a new policy in which FHA will encourage the inclusion of air conditioning systems in homes sold under FHA mortgages.

"The best opinion . . ." said Mason, "is that the savings on cleaning, laundry, and medical expenses resulting from air conditioning more than offset the added cost of operating a compressor during the cooling season."

"Within a few years," he added, "a house that is not air conditioned will be obsolete."

Equally important to the government's view are the opinions of thousands of doctors and psychologists across the country.

Conditioners Come In Many Sizes

AIR conditioners, like horses and women, come in many different sizes, shapes, types, temperaments, and degrees of efficiency.

And the comfort-seeking home owner, like the horseplayer or the man ready to settle down, wonders:

Which one shall I put my money on?

To help him, and you, if you want air conditioning but can't decide what kind, here are the major types, plus an explanation of how each works:

Room Units

1. The familiar window-style, available through appliance dealers, is designed to cool a single room. It generally is the least expensive of all air-conditioning units, and comes in various sizes to handle large and small rooms.

2. The "through-the-wall" type is similar to the window air conditioner except that it is installed permanently in an outside wall. Although both of these room units ordinarily are engineered to cool one room, they often are powerful enough to air condition an entire small house if the house is thickly insulated with mineral wool.

Central Systems

1. The forced-air system, which uses the same circulating ducts as the heating system, is popular for both new and older homes. Air is cooled, filtered, and dehumidified at the central unit and circulated by blowers to all rooms of the house.

2. Independent systems have no connection with heating. They operate in the same way as the forced air system, but separate ducts to each room are required.

3. For a house that has hot-water heat, a special air conditioner is available that sends chilled water through the heating pipes.

A point to remember: in choosing an air-conditioning system is that adequate insulation can reduce the size and the cost of equipment by as much as 50 percent.

Ample Storage Space

AMPLE STORAGE space for cleaning equipment will prevent a cluttered appearance in the kitchen or utility room. Many homemakers are utilizing storage space off a bedroom hallway for their vacuum cleaner, brushes, brooms, hand sweeper, dust cloths and other everyday cleaning materials. Messy rooms and oily cloths can mar the permanent interiors.

Walls Major Item In Cooling

PROPER insulation may decide if you can or can't afford air conditioning in your home.

Here's why:

Thick mineral wool in the walls and ceiling (and in floors, where needed) blocks the passage of heat. As a result, an air-conditioning system has less work to do, since less heat from the outside gets into the house.

You save cash immediately on your air conditioning, whether you are building, remodeling or simply installing cooling equipment in your present home, because the thick mineral wool permits a smaller and less costly system — as much as 50 percent less — to cool the house comfortably.

If this sounds like you'll be robbing Peter to pay Paul — spending more for insulation to save on cooling equipment — consider these savings builders realized when the Air Conditioned Village, in Austin, Tex., was constructed:

These builders saved an average of $139.60 per house by installing thick mineral wool.

Each dollar they spent on insulation above the FHA's minimum requirement saved $1.82 on air-conditioning equipment. This meant a cash savings of 82 cents for every dollar spent on insulation.

Added to these savings is the economy of operating the units. The thick insulation made it possible to heat and cool the houses at an average savings of $107.90 per year.

If you are building or planning to build an air-conditioned house, you can realize similar savings with proper insulation installed during construction.

If you are remodeling or simply adding a cooling system to your present home, mineral wool in the correct thicknesses for air conditioning can be blown pneumatically into existing walls and ceilings. Similar savings on equipment and operation will result.

Air conditioning engineers recommend a six-inch thickness of mineral wool for ceilings, a minimum of three inches in walls, and two inches in floors over such areas as crawl spaces, attached garages, and porches.

New Installations

ABOUT 75 per cent of the air conditioning equipment sold last year was installed in new houses.

Patients Relax

DENTISTS say air conditioning helps patients to relax.

Gardeners Disagree On Use Of Mulch Against Weeds

SUMMER MULCHES—Some gardeners mulch and some don't. We've been asked to air our views on this controversial subject. The purpose of a mulch is to keep weeds down and soil moisture in. Old timers don't like to put on a mulch because they say that the soil needs loosening to allow air in.

A mulch insulates the ground and keeps it from getting as warm as a cultivated soil in the heat of day. And a mulch also keeps the soil from cooling off at night. Crops on a mulched soil will frost much quicker than those not mulched because the mulch keeps the soil heat from radiating up where it might protect the plants.

All my vegetables are mulched immediately after planting. Tomato plants are mulched with four inches of straw or sawdust after planting. Our cucumber plants are mulched with straw after the plants start to run. All our fruit trees and evergreen plantings are mulched with sawdust because we have huge piles of it in the neighborhood.

Main Reason

The main reason for mulching is to eliminate the job of cultivating. Mulching isn't the perfect way to gardening, but if you're a busy gardener I'd say go ahead and mulch your growing crops. If you use sawdust, remember that bacteria in the soil wants to work on it, and in the process of decaying the material, they use the nitrogen from the soil so rapidly that the plants don't get enough.

This causes the leaves to turn yellow. You can prevent this by adding a form of nitrogen (say 1/2 pound of ammonium nitrate to each bush) or you can apply a liquid plant food.

Other materials we've used include woodchips, pine needles, shavings, leaves, waste hay, black polyethylene and aluminum foil. They all work fine. There's no reason why the home gardener can't mulch his garden, take a couple weeks vacation and still find a fairly good garden when he returns. Try mulching part of your garden, and cultivate the rest. You can tell if it pays to mulch or not.

Picking Roses: When you cut roses from your garden, cut them with half open buds and you'll get more mileage out of them indoors. Don't concentrate all the beauty of a rose in one part of a room. Use two or three bud vases, place a bloom in each and put one on the dressing table in a bedroom, and one on the desk, and put one in the kitchen.

Roses don't like to be crowded in a vase so spread their beauty around the house.

Question Box

F. G. of Stroudsburg: "All that came from my tulip bulbs was one large leaf and no flowers. What caused this? How often should the bulbs be dug and stored in the cellar during the summer?"

One large leaf and no bloom means yours should be dug and separated. After the foliage has turned yellow and died down, I'd dig the bulbs, dust them with Captan, Ferbam, sulfur or Zineb, and replant them. There's no need for storing them in the cellar during the summer, since they'll keep much better in the ground. Tulips should be dug and separated every three years, although some gardeners like to do it every year. No doubt you get larger flowers if bulbs are dug each year. Cut faded flowers and seed heads off as soon as possible, and don't be in too big a hurry to remove the foliage. The temptation is great to remove the unsightly tulip leaves, but you should wait until it's yellow or has died down naturally before removing.

E. S. of Wind Gap: "I started my garden mums from cuttings, rooted in plain water. What should I do with the nicely rooted plants now?"

Plant them outdoors in a soil that's worked up nice and loosely, with peat added. Water them well, especially during periods of dry weather to keep the plants growing. Mulch them to a depth of two inches with rotted manure, peat, ground corn cobs, sawdust, shredded bark, straw or any material you can get to prevent loss of moisture and to smother weeds. Cultivation is needed in areas where mulching is not practiced. I like to feed our outdoor mums liquid plant food. If you use dry fertilizer, be sure to water after feeding, since plants cannot (Please turn to page sixteen)

Northampton Coroner Files Complaint

DELABOLE—George T. Kametz, Northampton County coroner, has lodged a complaint with the State Public Utilities Commission in Harrisburg as the result of Monday night's car-train crash here which killed a Wind Gap man and his wife.

Kametz said he has asked the PUC to do something about providing flasher lights at railroad crossings in the county. He told the PUC that Lambert Sadtler and his wife were the fifth and sixth persons killed at unlighted crossings since Aug. 16, 1956.

He cited not only the local Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad crossing, but the one at Bushkill's Crossing, six miles north of Bath, where three women and a man were killed by a Lehigh and New England train in 1956.

"These are only two of several grade crossings in the county which have no flasher lights to warn of approaching trains."

"I have taken the matter to the PUC because I believe that something has to be done to protect the lives of unwary people. State Senator Joseph J. Yosko has pushed for legislation to compel the installation of flasher lights at all crossings, but nothing has been done about it," Kametz said.

Funeral services for the Sadtlers will be held at 3:15 p.m. today in the Schmidt Funeral Home at Wind Gap.

"It just ain't so" but here at Jere's is the next thing to it... for what is on this tree is just as good, if not a little better. Hundreds and hundreds of names (and more than likely yours) are fastened to every branch and twig. It is impossible to know every woman's name in Monroe County. Now, for you to be doubly sure that your name is included on that tree, stop in at your earliest convenience and hand in your name and address, so that it can be placed on the tree. No phone calls please.

THREE CARS — Three automobiles crashed at Normal and Green Sts. in East Stroudsburg last night. There was heavy damage to two of the vehicles. (Photo by Les Carillon)

Three-Car Accident In East Borough

ONE CAR WAS DEMOLISHED and another had $1,500 worth of damage done to it in a three-car accident at Normal and Green Sts., East Stroudsburg, at 6:45 p. m. yesterday.

Borough police said George W. Decker, 79, of 279 Normal St., will have X-rays taken today to determine the extent of his injuries, but that he did not appear to be seriously hurt.

Police said Decker, parked at the curb in front of his home, began to back his car preparatory to turning into Green Street when an eastbound car driven by Harvey J. Slicker, 56, of 259 Isabelle St., collided with it.

The Decker car was then forced by the impact into a parked vehicle owned by Clifford Lambert, 49, of 123 Maple Ave.

Decker's car was demolished, while damage to the Slicker car was estimated at $1,500. The Lambert vehicle was damaged on the right side.

Stroudsburg Brothers Fined $1,000

MILFORD — Two Stroudsburg brothers charged with aggravated assault and battery were fined $1,000, received suspended sentences and were placed on probation for three years in Pike County Court Tuesday.

Sentences were imposed by Judge Carlton Woodring, Northampton County, and Judge Charles G. Webb, Tioga County, on Arthur Low, 877 Scott St., and Russell E. Low, 536 Sarah St.

The defendants were charged with assaulting Edwin Dugan, a cottage owner, near South Sterling in August, 1955, during an argument over use of a roadway.

One Count Pike County juries found each brother guilty on one count in May, 1956.

Three other assault charges against Arthur were dismissed and Russell was acquitted of a charge of assault and battery against Mrs. Samuel Rock, another cottage owner.

Not guilty verdicts were directed by the court in assault and battery charges brought against Russell by James Fedigan and Michael Dugan.

Bulldozers Rip Runways To Halt Teen-Age Drag Races

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP) — Bulldozers and road graders ripped up three long asphalt runways at the old Central Airport yesterday, preventing forever teen-age drag races in souped-up cars.

Tuesday night 2,000 youngsters in 1,000 cars whipped wildly up and down the half-mile runways.

Tear Gas They were routed by 135 police and firemen using tear gas and powerful hoses. Some police were stoned and two youths were arrested. As the last were driven from the field, one shouted, "We'll be back."

They can't now. The drastic measure of wrecking their race track even extended to ripping out pavement around the abandoned hangars.

The job was directed by Pennsauken Township authorities while a representative of the New York development firm which owns the field said—for the final measure—that trespassers would be prosecuted.

"DRUG ADDICTION", a Medical Society film, was shown at the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday at the close of the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club meeting.

The film showed the dreadful effects which result from the illicit use of narcotics and portrayed the ease by which people, including many young people, can become slaves of drugs. Steps being taken to rehabilitate dope addicts and return them to normal lives were illustrated. The film closed with a plea for a more aggressive enforcement of the narcotics law and a greater public participation in attempts to crack down on the illicit but profitable trade.

Dr. Charles S. Flagler was program chairman. John E. Watt, vice president, was in charge of the meeting.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Patriotism means such different things to different people. Some people who love their country deeply shy away even from the word "patriotism" as chauvinistic. Other people use love of country as an excuse for hating certain of their fellow citizens.

But between these two extremes there are people, honestly and sincerely patriotic, who look at the same set of circumstances and interpret them in quite opposite ways. Two stories which have appeared on Family Fare within the last few weeks point that up, only too clearly.

The speaker at the DAR luncheon this month termed the League of Women Voters "a left wing" organization because it favors revision of the Pennsylvania's 1874 Constitution with the danger that the requirement for the "belief in God" might be taken from the Constitution clause referring to holding of jobs in government, and said that League "wants an unlimited debt ceiling".

At the dinner of the local League of Women Voters this week, there was no public mention of the DAR speech but a great deal of talk about "political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government". As for the debt limit, the state League does oppose a monetary debt limit in the state Constitution but "supports procedural restraints on the state's borrowing capacity."

Oddly enough, the private comment I heard on the DAR speech came from women who are loyal members of both organizations and who were facing up to the fact that obviously both opinions could not be true.

Individually, you would have to choose. Collectively, such public expression of divergent opinion is good. It probably is over-simplifying the problem, but it does remind me of the arguments we seven sisters used to have on the proper way to bring up our children.

There was the disciplinary school of thought, the free development school of thought, and the "let 'em get away with it till you can't stand it any more" school. We argued till we were blue in the face citing authorities and horrible examples.

Meanwhile, the children grew themselves up, and there isn't a one of them I wouldn't be proud and happy to claim as the result of my own training. What you did, even how you did it, really didn't seem to make much difference as long as it was done with love.

Anyway, it makes a comforting thought to take into Memorial Day.

LOCAL STUDY—a survey of the Borough of East Stroudsburg made by the local League of Women Voters—is here being admired by the state president, Mrs. Norman F. Patton, and the borough's Mayor Jesse Flory, as the local president, Mrs. George Levin, stands by at the first annual meeting.

League Of Women Voters End First Year Ready For Full League Status

The League of Women Voters can be most effective when it concentrates its efforts on specific and limited goals, Mrs. Norman F. Patton, state president, told members of the provisional league of East Stroudsburg at their first annual meeting held Thursday night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

The local league has applied for regular league status and when it is granted, Mrs. Patton warned them, they will think of a hundred things they want to work for.

"We are not do-gooders or reformers," she told them. "We are all volunteers with personal lives and responsibilities that take precedence over league affairs even though our families may sometimes doubt that. Alone and single-handed we are not attempting to save the world."

"What we are trying to do is to promote political responsibility within the framework of government through informed and active participation of citizens in that government," she said. She described the method of establishing national and state agenda which come from recommendations of local Leagues and of the two-way flow of ideas from the grass-roots to the state and national organization.

The local provisional League has satisfied the requirements for full League status during its first year of existence, its president, Mrs. George Levin, pointed out in her opening remarks. The local story, a historical and statistical survey of the Borough of East Stroudsburg, has been printed and was available at the meeting. The state study of the State Constitution has been supplemented by a detailed study of the minor judiciary in Monroe County.

The local League also made it possible for the first time in the local primaries for voters to know the stand of the candidates in their own words which the League arranged to have printed in the Daily Record.

Next year's budget submitted by Mrs. Charles Fisher, was adopted, and the board will meet to make preliminary plans for next year's work on June 4 at the Levin home in Shawnee. It was a dinner meeting attended by the husbands of members as chairman of the dinner committee.

Home Economist Discusses Food Additives, Guards

By Margaret MacLaren
Monroe Co. Home Economist

Did you ever notice the words calcium propionate on a bread wrapper? This is a chemical which is added to retard mold. Its use is permitted both by state and federal regulation, and is safe to use. This is just one example of many chemicals used as food additives. These chemicals or additives perform many different functions. Some, like calcium propionate, are used as preservatives. Others may help retain appearance, color or maintain flavor. Then too, certain additives may be included for greater nutritive value.

Every once in a while, some extremist tries to tell us we are being poisoned by degrees by all these various additives. That's not true according to skilled chemists. Yet, along with the development of new forms of foods, often some new type of additive is necessary. In some cases, that new additive may not have been tested for a long enough time. That's why some organizations have to be around to check foods, especially when so many food firms are bringing out different products. This does not suggest that food manufacturers are trying to put something over on us. Most all are especially careful, but there will always be one or two who bear watching. Some additions to foods improve the nutritive value, such as: Vitamin A in margarine, B vitamins in breads and cereals, Vitamin D in milk.

Two agencies have something to say about what goes into our foods, one, the Food and Drug Administration, a federal organization, the other Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, part of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in Harrisburg. The Food and Drug Administration came into being about 50 years ago when people were worried about not being able to stop the use of formaldehyde in preserved food. Today this organization checks for toxic additives, though one aspect of the law limits its effectiveness.

ness. Food and Drug people cannot approve a food additive before it appears on the market. In some cases, it takes 7 years to prove that a chemical is not cancer inducing. Fortunately, in practice, most foods and chemical manufacturers test and present the results of their tests to the F.D.A. But the present law is not adequate to protect us from the few fringe operators who dare the F.D.A. to catch them.

In Pennsylvania, the Bureau of Foods and Chemistry acts in similar capacity, with a considerable degree of regulatory power under a 1909 law. Requirements for certain foods are spelled out carefully. Here are only a very few.

(1) Sausage—all sausage must be meat — no cereal extenders are allowed, no color can be added, coal tar or natural, no gums or stabilizer either. In Pennsylvania, a meat product labelled sausage is definitely an all meat extract.

(2) Pennsylvania regulation does not permit the use of coumarin as imitation vanilla extract.

(3) Butter Cookies—half the shortening used in cookies marked "butter cookies" must be butter. This means butter flavored cookies do not necessarily have as much butter in them as butter cookies would.

Under Pennsylvania law, manufacturers of prepared food, bakers, frozen food packers, etc. are required to secure a license to operate. This license makes them known to the Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, and the field staff can inspect these plants at any time. Also samples of products manufactured under contract to the state. Furthermore, the ingredients used in prepared foods have to be listed in the label in order of quantity used. Labels often tell us a lot, not to mention the normal items like serving suggestions, number of servings, etc.

It would be impossible for us to check all the foods we buy. We have to rely on some impartial agency to check foods for us. However, this agency should not deny us the benefits of advances in food technology.

OFF THE RECORD

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

ACCORDING TO THE statistics of the Stroudsburg High School Athletic Association, the Mountaineers took in more at the gate in their Thanksgiving Day grid classic with East Stroudsburg than in all other (four) home football games this past season.

The receipts from the Cavalier duel at Gordon Griffiths Field, Turkey Day, totalled $299.25, while the receipts from the other home tilts reached only $199.75. Included in the four-set was a Saturday night, quickly-scheduled, game with Wilson High which brought $912.80 into the Stroudsburg coffers.

Other receipts in football were Emmaus, $691; Whitehall, $264; and Slatkington, $122.15.

Bad weather, especially during the Slatkington game and prior to the Wilson and Whitehall frays kept attendance down for the Mountaineers in '57.

However, meat to our favorite subject was served in the Eastburg receipts whereby two games might not bring $5,000 but it would be a bit better than the four-game "take" of $1,900.

Also, it seems, Saturday night football is more profitable than Friday, especially with the stores closed in boroughs. Wilson's appearance here under a hurried scheduling and bad weather which preceded the contest bears this out no end.

In basketball, Stroudsburg's best gate was accumulated against East Stroudsburg at a time when the season was still hearing the futures of the Thanksgiving Day football classic.

The Mountaineers-Cavaliers court duel, played in early December, drew $406.50 into the ticket office of the new Stroudsburg gym. The closest gate to this was Lehigh and Stroudsburg when the Mountaineers still had a chance for the second half Lehigh Valley Basketball League flag. The receipts from the Indians-Mountaineers duel totalled $190.50.

We haven't the exact figures on the second Eastburg-Stroudsburg court game in the Cavaliers den, but we would imagine it nearly doubled the Mountaineers share of the first game.

Three games in basketball between Eastburg-Stroudsburg wouldn't hurt either school's treasury. From the gate receipts it could be classified a must instead of a proposal.

It looks like the University of Pennsylvania Palestra will be "off limits" for schoolboy basketball teams, starting next year. The recent approval of the General State Authority allocating $104,695 for purchase of equipment and improvements to the huge Farm Show Arena at Harrisburg, indicates this no end.

The improvements would include a portable basketball floor and a seating plan which would boost the capacity of the arena from 7,000 to 10,000 spectators.

Previously, the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association held most of their "big" eastern tournament games at the Quaker City Palestra. The final, pitting the east and west titlists, were always held in Penn's court emporium.

The PIAA, which also has its main office in Harrisburg, has indicated that it would use the Farm Show Arena for its annual championship games which are now played in Philly if the GSA okayed renovating of the state capitol site.

Plans also call for the Farm Show building to be used for college contests and other amateur tilts beside schoolboy games. The pros will not be allowed to show their wares in the Farm Show Arena, a stipulation reveals.

Frank Clause, the Old Forge kegler who has exhibited his pin finesse hereabouts many times, has been named to the executive committee of the newly formed Professional Bowlers Association of the United States.

Don Carter, of St. Louis, was elected president of the organization, which intends to solidify all the "pro" pin-toppers of the country.

Engineers 'Tune' Up '500' Classic

By Dale Burgess

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Engineers tuned up 33 race cars and 250 loud speakers Wednesday for America's noisiest sports event, the 42nd 500-mile auto race, and then closed up shop until the furious flying start at 11 a.m. (CDT) Friday.

The 2½ mile track, closed since the end of qualifications Sunday, was re-opened for three hours Wednesday afternoon to let drivers get the feel of their cars with full fuel tanks and give mechanics a last chance to make adjustments.

Then the Hoosier capital surrendered to carnival, with a round of balls and parties. Many of them honored movie star Shirley MaLaure, who will kiss the oil-stained winner Friday and give him the traditional Borg-Warner Trophy.

The '500' festival, inaugurated last year, already had boomed into a major carnival. It will start off Thursday morning with Mayor Philip Bay's breakfast honoring former 500 winners, clear back to Ray Harroun, the well-preserved first Indianapolis champion of 1911.

Many of the recent winners will be missing. Three of the Indianapolis champions since World War II—George Robson, Bill Vukovich and Bob Sweikert—have died in racing smashups.

The two 500s have been run without a serious injury. Two drivers suffered relatively minor injuries in practice runs for this year's race.

Drivers will be called together Thursday for instructions and warnings from speedway officials, with a special session for the eight first-time starters to make certain they understand the various flags used by Starter Bill Vandewater.

Good Rookies

The unusually good crop of rookies was a challenge to such speedway veterans as Paul Russo, starting for the 13th time in a powerful Novi-rugged Tony Bettenhausen, in his 11th start, and Johnny Parsons, the only former winner in the field and who will race for the ninth time.

The weather bureau forecast scattered showers for Friday—but the speedway counted on its fabulous weather luck. Rain has forced postponement of the 500 only once, in 1915.

Jimmy Bryan, the national big car champion three of the last four years, remained the favorite in Sam Hanks' 1957 winning car, a novel horizontal-engine job combining the talents of engineer George Salih and body specialist Quinn Epperly. Hanks, now the speedway's director of competition, set a record of 135,601 miles an hour.

Frank Clause, the Old Forge kegler who has exhibited his pin finesse hereabouts many times, has been named to the executive committee of the newly formed Professional Bowlers Association of the United States.

Touring Pros Ready For Western Open

DETROIT (AP)—The nation's touring golf professionals are back in the Detroit area again this week for the 55th Western Open tournament.

Defending champion Doug Ford is on hand for another crack at the title he captured in Detroit last year in a dramatic sudden-death playoff.

Few Repeat

Few golfers have been able to repeat in the Western. Sam Snead, winner of his own tournament recently in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was the last to do it. Snead's back-to-back triumphs came in 1949 and 1950. Previously Ralph Guldahl won in 1936-37.

Play starts Thursday over the Red Run Golf Club course in suburban Royal Oak. Par for the 6,765-yard layout is 36-36-72. First place in the $25,000 tournament is worth $5,000.

Toronto After Major League Baseball Club

TORONTO (AP)—The City Council will be asked to spearhead a new campaign to bring major league baseball to Toronto.

Controller William Allen said he feels there is a good possibility the Los Angeles Dodgers franchise in the National League will be moved to Toronto or Minneapolis.

"Our position will be strengthened if we assure the National League officials the council and residents of this city are solidly behind any move to bring a major league franchise to Toronto," he said.

Scanlon Remains Unbeaten In 29

CHICAGO (AP)—Cat-nick Irish Bobby Scanlon, San Francisco City College student, remained undefeated in 29 fights Wednesday night by left hooking to a unanimous 10-round decision over Chicago's Bobby Rogers in a light-weight brawl in Chicago Stadium.

Scanlon, an intense 25-year-old batter making his national television debut, opened up viciously in the last two rounds to stagger Rogers twice with smashing combinations. By the time it ended, Rogers' left eye nearly was closed.

Kirkland's HR Clips Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Willie Kirkland's two-run homer in the ninth provided the winning margin as the San Francisco Giants beat Philadelphia 7-6 Wednesday night.

Kirkland's homer, his fourth, capped a three-run rally in which the Giants took a 7-5 lead. Hank Sauer, scored on a fly to center.

Japan Dominates Swimming Events In 3rd Asian Games

By Jim Becker

TOKYO (AP)—Japan, its relentless drive in track and field virtually halted, switched to swimming Wednesday for a renewed harvest of gold medals in the third Asian Games.

The Japanese swept all seven swimming races on the card, including a world record performance of 4:17.2 by its 400-meter medley relay team and a smashing victory by Olympian Tsuyoshi Yamaguchi in the 1,500-meter freestyle. Yamaguchi, second to Australia's Murray Rose in the Melbourne Olympics, was timed in 18:00.3.

Japan has a total of 30 gold medals and 479 points in the unofficial team standings for an imposing lead, Iran is next with 135 points.

Sweeps Five

Meanwhile, an astounding athlete from Nationalist China, Yang Chuankuang, swept through the first five events of the decathlon to compile a total of 4,063 points.

A good showing in the final five events Thursday would threaten the listed world record held by America's Rafer Johnson, a Los Angeles collegian, 7,985 points, and the record-shattering 8,013 points compiled 10 days ago by Russia's Vassili Kutznetsov.

A tall, husky man, Yang sprinted the 100 meters in 11.1 seconds, broad jumped 23 feet, 11½ inches, high jumped 6 feet, 7½-inch, ran the 400 meters in :50.1 and put the shot 41 feet, 7½ inches. He is weaker in field events.

Previously in individual events the Chinese superstar had won a bronze medal in the 400 meters and silver medals in the broad jump and 110-meter hurdles.

Held To One Medal

Japan's bonanza in the first of the swimming competition came as India, Pakistan and Iran combined to hold the host country to a single victory in track and field, that in the pole vault.

Iran collected two gold medals in weightlifting. That made 23 for the other 19 nations competing, seven less than the Japanese have picked up by themselves.

John Heckman hurled the victory, setting down Hoffman's with three safeties.

Gibson, Arnold Gain In Tennis

SURBITON, England (AP)—Wimbledon Champion Althea Gibson of New York and little Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., scored easy victories Wednesday to gain quarter-final berths in the Surrey Lawn Tennis Championships.

Miss Gibson, heavy favorite to retain the title she won last year, again played in spurts as she beat Valerie White of England 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Arnold trounced Dawn Thomas of Australia 6-1, 6-1.

The Surrey tournament is a tuneup for the all-England championships at Wimbledon next month.

Carm Sees Sugar And He In 1959

BUDRURY, Ont. (AP)—Former World Middleweight Champion Carmen Basilio said Wednesday he and champion Sugar Ray Robinson will probably fight again in June 1959.

Basilio, in Sudbury to fish and to speak at a church fund-raising dinner, said he'll probably have a couple of tune-up fights this year. He doesn't expect to fight Robinson in 1958.

Basilio won the middleweight crown from Robinson last September, then lost it in a return bout in March.

Keen To Seek 2nd Straight

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — Dick Keen, veteran Bethlehem stock car driver, will be back this Saturday night in an attempt to make it two straight in the Dorney Park 25-lap feature race.

Keen, who has been driving sports cars and stock cars for nearly ten years, won the opening feature, last Saturday night after overtaking Monk Keler, of Pottstown, on the 12th lap. Because of the big Indianapolis 500 mile race Memorial Day, Dorney Park officials have decided against holiday racing here, so that Saturday night's events will be the only racing of the week on the local fifth of a mile oval.

A field of drivers that includes Smokey Dengler and Jack Rudy, of Reading; Monk Keler, Pottstown; Jack Ruby, Phoenixville; Freddie Adams and Dave Ely, of Kutztown; Dick Havens, New Hope; Harry Moore, of Pottstown, and nearly a score of others, will be on hand to give Keen a battle Saturday night.

Dual Show, Featuring Spring Cars, Heads Memorial Day Program At Nazareth Track

INDIANAPOLIS-TYPE race cars will make their 1958 appearance along with stock cars in a double show at the Nazareth Fairgrounds' halfmile speedway Friday afternoon, Memorial Day, May 30—with time trials at 1 p.m., and the first heat at 2 p.m.

The famous spring cars, sanctioned by the United Racing Club, will participate in six events, including time trials, heats and a 20-lap feature event.

This will be the first time this year the URC has come to Nazareth, and drivers expect to better the times of 1957 when they turned the track in under 26 seconds. The sprint cars will be racing on a rebuilt speedway.

During last year Bert Brooks, who pilots a Brooks Chevie, won 12 feature events. This hot driver hails from New Britain, Conn.

Other cars to compete include the Ace-T-Bird, Wilkins Dodge, Cleberg GMC, Ellis Dodge, Secules Hal, Stevens GMC, Dowd-Eckert Chevie, and others.

A full program of stock car races will be held on Sunday afternoon, June 1—starting at 2:30 p.m.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

FOR THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1958
March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Try to finish incomplete matters but, at the same time, do not step new tasks or problems. The day is helpful to both. Concentrate on essentials.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Your Venus now stresses a need for diplomacy in personal affairs. Where work is concerned, don't delay too long before getting day's program started. Some unusual progress is possible.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Mercury's position now favors study, research, handling delicate and confidential matters, teaching, the literary professions. Gains indicated through persistence and fortitude.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Unless your schedule is exceptionally demanding, take time to analyze some of next week's projects and plans. Finish matters awaiting completion so as to get a clean start Monday.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Day can be progressive and constructive, depending upon how you manage and how you allocate chores and activities. New undertakings need extra scrutiny, effort.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Do not overtax yourself. Take a few minutes now and then for quiet rest. Overdoing things is often a Virgo fault; it is harmful to health and disposition.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Without neglecting new and urgent matters, try to clear desk, bench and home chores so as to have a more pleasant week-end and a fresh start next week. Do your share to maintain harmony.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Responsive influences for sound business deals, conferences, planning big undertakings; also for delicate tasks, the artistic professions. Be amenable to suggestions; learn all you can.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Bright, engaging personalities, as are most Sagittarians, can make real headway in professional, trade or industry now. Be alert for new opportunities under a fine Jupiter aspect.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—If you search you will find you can make improvements in many directions. Concentrate on those, which will be helpful no matter what your position. Reward indicated for good efforts.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—It takes more than desire and ambition to succeed. It takes full employment of your abilities and assets, plus consistent effort. And you are equal to this. Forward!

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—Neptune's aspect warns against carelessness in hazardous activities. Avoid extremes, anxiety. You CAN achieve if you aim high and capitalize on your finer qualities.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—You! YOU! YOU! have sterling qualities but are not always as practical as you might be. Don't attempt to do too many things at one time. You have an inclination to scatter your energies. Gemini has given the world splendid writers, artists and able organizers in business and public fields. Cultivate your talent for music, if you can. Whatever your station in life, you can and should perform well.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—G. K. Chesterton, famed journalist, author, Patrick Henry, Amer. statesman, orator.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—He's a good gardener, too. The area around his home is filled with a wide variety of flowers.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—He is devoted to a pet dog named "Spotty". The two of them are nearly inseparable companions.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Never married, George Angle may have seemed to some people to be leading a solitary, perhaps even lonely, life.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—The men who know him—such as George Straka, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars—know this is untrue.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—"I've never known a man with a more active mind or a better conversationalist. I could talk to George Angle for hours on end and never get tired of listening to him," Straka said.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—"And he's helped keep the decoration of graves of veterans alive around here," Straka said. "He's been working on the graves committee since 1944 when the VFW took over the job from the Sons of Veterans organization."

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Angle's route has been roughly the same each of those years. He takes the flags and wreaths "up the mountain" to Canadensis. He puts flags on the graves at the Catholic and Prospect cemeteries.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—During the past week, he has worked actively with members of the Monroe County Joint Memorial Committee and veterans organization groups in helping to place the traditional American flags on veterans graves.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—One of those graves, in Stroudsburg cemetery, belonged to one of his oldest friends. The simple headstone bore the name Harry Schoonover and the dates 1876-1938. Schoonover had gone to school with Angle. When the Spanish-American War came he enlisted in the Army, joined the Corps of Engineers.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—Later Schoonover served in the 15th Infantry in the Philippine Insurrection. He came back to his home on King St., East Stroudsburg and he lived here the rest of his life.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—The gravestone could not tell the rest of the story. It could not, for example, say that Harry Schoonover's father had been a captain in the American Revolution.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—And none of the stones on any of the graves could ever say the things the men had thought and felt; none of them could attempt to sum up the reason for George got out of the Navy in 1910. Unlike some of his modern Navy brethren, he had ample proof that you could "see the world" if you joined.

He spent the rest of his life in this county. He lives at 23 Elm St., East Stroudsburg, in a home which contains, among other things, one of his proudest possessions.

This is a 25-volume set of books on men who took part in the American Revolution. The books were given to a brother-in-law by Chester H. Rhodes, then a legislator, now President Judge of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania and a lifelong resident of Stroudsburg.

"I can look up the background and history of any man who fought in the Revolution within a matter of a few minutes," he said. "It's a fine set of books to have around."

One Fisherman Went Riding—Then There Were Only Two

NEWFOUNDLAND — Many a fisherman has lost a fish, but few have lost another fisherman.

However, in Newfoundland last night, a new kind of fish story revealed the fact that a party of three local men, headed for Cayuga Lake for two days of fishing, mislaid one of its members.

The result: No fish, no sleep and one less fisherman.

The saga began Sunday night when Sterling Ross, Honesdale, joined Noel Frisbie and F. Carroll Krautter, both of Newfoundland, on the jaunt to Cayuga Lake.

Arriving in a small village near the lake, Ross and Krautter dropped Frisbie off at the county clerk's office to get a fishing license.

They returned in half an hour, waited . . . and waited. There was no sign of Frisbie.

The pair alerted police, the game warden and organized a search party of village residents, fearing Frisbie had drowned. They searched the town and covered the ground in both directions outside of town.

The search continued until noon Tuesday when the two returned here. A telephone call from Utica, N. Y., ended their worries, but not their curiosity.

Frisbie reported himself safe and sound and on his way home, but gave no reason for his disappearance.

The accomplishment was announced yesterday by Adm. Arleigh Burke, Naval chief of operations. He said it was the longest period man had been exposed to artificial atmosphere, except in a laboratory.

He said the feat had implications "extending far beyond the realm of useless warfare" and gives insights "into space life problems as they are actually encountered under working conditions."

The crewmen, he said, "medically proved the ability of the Navy Submarine Service to conduct unrestricted operations under artificial atmospheric conditions with no adverse effects."

In the unmarked graves on islands no one has ever heard of; in the white-crossed military burial grounds, there are no histories and no legends carved in stone.

But the story is there: in the minds and the eyes of the living who have seen the death of other men.

And this is why George Angle—an old vet, a man with memories—is so much a part of each of us today.

Worth Considering Seriously

Protecting against a positive future need is well worth contemplating before that need is urgent, especially if the protection is sensible, convenient and economical. Memorial property for the interment of yourself and loved ones, in the form of a family plot, should not be purchased in haste during an hour of sorrow.

The natural beauty of the countryside in the foothills of the Pocono Mountains, along with well-planted landscaping now being developed, assures a peaceful resting place for all time. The property is well managed, and must, according to its charter, always be operated on a non-profit basis. It will be perpetually maintained through an Endowment Trust under the laws of the Commonwealth with the Stroudsburg Security Trust Co. as the Trustee.

The Zion Memorial Section now being developed is completely sold. Plots in the Brodhead Memorial Section now being landscaped are offered at attractive prices and convenient terms. We invite inspection. Call or telephone Henry C. Hoffman, Secretary: Wyandotte 2-4035.

What does Memorial Day signify?

The Will to be Remembered is strong in the makeup of most people, and Sentiment is also in the hearts of all at this Memorial Day season.

Despite these obvious facts it is singular that even in these prosperous times probably not more than seventy per cent of final resting places are memorialized in any manner whatsoever.

We are also impressed by the fact that on one or more of the worst days next winter we will be called upon to assist families to make plot selections. There will be snow covering everything, it will be zero or less, and in addition the survivors will be practically blinded by grief. Obviously it is the worst possible time and way to purchase a plot.

Right now it is delightful at Laurelwood, and we are persuaded that it is a good season to give consideration to this ultimate need. Surely it is better to own a Cemetery plot and not need it, than to need it and not have it.

If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
